Political, economic changes

Sadat's cabinet quits

CAIRO. May 12 (R) — Egyptian Prime Minister Mustapha Khalil submitted his cabinet's resignation Monday in preparation for major political and economic changes expected to be announced Wednesday by President Anwar Sadat. Dr. Khalil told reporters the cabinet sumitted its resignation to President Sadat to allow him to introduce changes in the country.

In his letter of resignation. Khalil said: "Now that a new stage of national action begins, we are confident you. Mr. Sadat, will make the correct decision taking into consideration the country's best interests." Khalil's cabinet was formed in June 1979 and was the first party government under Sadaf's multi-party system. It represented the National Democratic Party led by Sadat. Khalil said his cabinet had done its best and carried out the government's plan with "great capability and honesty." He told reporters he is placing himself at the disposal of Sadat." and I will be willing to serve in any position he may ask me to fill. Meanwhile, a group of 54 prominent Egyptians including two former vice presidents and five former ministers. Monday called for a more representative system of government and criticized what they described as ad hoc individual decisions.

In a statement, they accused Sadar's government of disregarding the constitution and making opposition irrelevant. As an example of ad hoc individual decisions, the statement noted Sadat's decision last month to offer the United States military facilities for its abortive attempt to rescue the American hostages in Tehran.

The cabinet was not consulted, the statement said. It demanded that the president should not belong to any political party and that referenda should be held only on the recommendation of the People's Assembly (Parliament).

Referenda were no more than a cover for individual decisions and could not be considered binding, the statement said. Sadat often has used the referendum to get a popular mandate on controversial issues.

The statement, which came two days

Bonn rules out supply of reactor to Israel

JEDDAH, May 12 - A West German Embassy spokesman here denied an Israeli newspaper report this week that West Germany will supply Israel with a breeder reactor to produce plutonium fuel for its existing nuclear reactors.

The spokesman, quoting officials in Bonn, told Arab News Monday that "there was not a word of truth in the Israeli report".

The French news agency AFP quoted the Israeli newspaper Yedioth Aharonth as claiming that West German intelligence has had no fear the plutonium would be used for atomic bombs because Israel already had enough plutonium for nuclear explosives.

before Sadat is due to announce radical domestic changes, said: "The constitutional bodies (such as the People's Assembly) have become no more than instruments to implement decisions already taken." Sadat's National Democratic Party holds 330 of the 392 seats in the assembly.

Signatories to the statement include former vice presidents Abdul-Latif Boghdadi and Kamaleddin Hussein, former Arab League Secretary-General Mahmoud Riad. the former Egyptian Ambassador to Moscow former Deputy Premier Abdul-Salam Zayyat a number of university professors and judges, lettist writers, and independent member of Parliament Mumtaz Nassar.

The coalition also demanded an end to emergency laws imposed during the rule of the late President Gamal Abdul Nasser and an end to restrictions on the freedom to form political parties, the statement said. The signatories called for clear definitions of the terms "national unity, social peace and democratic socialism."

By Christian leader Israel branded impostor

BEIRUT, May 12 (AP) — A rightist leader here accused Israel Monday of posing as the protector of Lebanese Christians in order to serve its own ends in Lebanon.

"Israel has its own interests and ambitions. It has used, and still is using us to justify its interference and presence" in Lebanon, said Dany Chamoun in an interview published by the independent Beirut newspaper Al Anwar. Chamoun, younger son of former President Camille Chamoun, heads the "Tigers" militia of his father's National Liberal Party. The Tigers were the second largest militia the Christians fielded in Lehanon's civil war against an alliance of nationalist Muslims and Palestinians.

It was during the 1975-76 sectarian conflict that Israel began to establish links with the leading political parties of Lebanon's 1.9 million-strong Christian community. including the NLP.

The Christian forces of the rightist alliance that is known as the "Lebanese Fornt" has received 60 super-Sherman tanks and long range artillery from Israel during the civil war, which was snuffed out by Syria November, 1976.

The Syrian intervention rescued the Christians from a crushing defeat at the hands of the nationalist-commando alliance. But the Lebanese Front later took up arms against the Syrian truce-enforcing army because they resented peacekeeping curbs in Christians

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin has since made several declarations committing Israel to defend Lebanon's Christian community in any confrontation with the Syrians Chamoun's statement Monday was the first public criticism ever voiced by a Lebanese rightist leader of the Israeli role.

Israel tries to convey to the world the impression that it is helping and protecting the weak. We should not have allowed the Israeli manipulation to go that far." Chamoun said. He said the Christians' acceptance of Israeli help during the civil war was caused by the support given the commandos by some Arab countries.

Chamoun said he was willing to undertake a tour of the Arab world to explain to all Arab governments the intricacies of the Lebanese problem. Aimost all Arab governments were critical of the cooperation that developed between Lebanon's Christians and Israel. This cooperation shifted lately to southern Lebanon, where U.N. pea .k. ping (prees have been caught in the crossfire of Israeli cross-border raids and Palestinian commando reprisals.

Israel supports and arms rightist militiamen of Lebanese Army renegade Christian Maj. Saad Haddad, who controls a ten-kilometers deep enclave along Israel's 100-km-long border in southern Lebanon.

Haddad has pledged his "free Lebanon" enclave to fight until Palestinians and commandos are driven out from the whole of 4.015-square-mile Lebanon.

Chamoun's criticism of Israel is expected to draw a sharp reaction from Haddad, who boasts allegiance to the overall leadership of the rightist "Lebanese Front, rather than to the central government of President Elias

Carter urges summit delay

WASHINGTON, May 12 — President Jimmy Carter telephoned Egypt's President Anwar Sadat in an effort to prevent a threeway summit meeting on the Palestinian autonomy question until after the Democratic Party's presidential nominating convention in August, informed U.S. sources said.

Carter was concerned about reports Sadat would soon assume his country's prime ministership, thus making himself the chief negotiator in the stalled autonomy talks and forcing elevation of the negotiations to the summit level, according to the sources.

The American pres ident believes his own bargaining position in a summit with Sadat and Israel's Prime Minister Menahem Begin will remain weak until he is able to dispose of the political challenge from presidential contender Senator Edward Kennedy, the sources said.

Carter's strategy is to avoid a "Camp David-style" summit until after he wins renomination for a second term as president at his party's convention, slated for New York City the week of August 11.

In his telephone conversation with Sadat Monday morning, Carter discussed a number of related topics with the Egyptian leader, including:

- whether Sadat truly intended to assume the prime ministership following the resignation of the cabinet headed by Mustafa Khalil;

- where Egypt currently stands on the autonomy talks, and under what conditions it will agree to resume the negotiations; and - ways of sidestepping the proposed

European initiative on the Palestinians and of blocking any Soviet role in future peace talks. Carter reportedly said that if he wins the Democratic presidential nomination in August, he will begin applying serious pressure on Begin to compromise on the autonomy question. Meanwhile, new Secretary of State

Edmund Muskie Monday continued his consultations with U.S. Ambassador to Egypt Alfred Atherton and the American envoy to Israel, Samuel Lewis, whom he called back from their posts over the weekend. Both envoys blame Israel for last week's breakdown of the autonomy talks, informed sources said.

U.S. Middle East, negotiator Sol Linowitz, who has also returned from the Middle East, agrees that Israel is taking a "hardline" stand at this point.

12 die in N.E. Lebanon fighting

BEIRUT, May 12 (Agencies) — At least 12 combatants were killed in running battles Sunday between Christian militiamen of the right-wing Phalange Party and the Social National Syrian Party in northeastern Lebanon, police and party sources reported. According to police reports the two factions deployed mortars, rockets and machine guns in the battle which broke out around noon near the Baskanta area, 55 kilometers northeast of here.

The two sides accused each other of starting the clash which, according to police reports, left "several casualties."

A spokesman for the SNSP conceded his party lost four combatants and claimed the Phalangists lost eight in addition to "unspecified" numbers of injured on both The Phalangists refused to release their casualty figure. A spokesman for the Arab peace-keeping force said several people were slightly wounded in the clash. It was not immediately known whether rightist parties, the National Liberal Party or the Phalangists, suffered any casualties. Replying to a question, a spokesman for the Arab Deterrent Force said the peace troops command was still in contact with the various sides to contain the outburst and prevent a further deterioration.

Kuwaiti premier pays visit to Syria

DAMASCUS, May 12 (R) - Kuwaiti heir apparent and Prime Minister Sheikh Saad Abdulla al-Sabah arrived here Monday from Jordan on a three-day official visit to Syria. He told newsmen at the airport that he would have talks with Syrian officials on issues of mutual interest to the two sister

He said the current circumstances of the Arab nation, " call on all of us to have a unified concept or policy through which we can establish military, political and economic cooperation in the face of Israeli challenges. and restore Arab solidarity."

Syrian Prime Minister Dr. Abdul-Rauf

al-Kasm said that the talks would cover " deepening of bilateral relations and strengthening Arab solidarity in the face of the Camp David plot.

Sheikh Saad, who also visited Baghdad and Amman. is heading a high-level delegation.

Exiled Arab mayors fail to return home

AMMAN, May 12 (Agencies) — Two Palestinian mayors and an Islamic religious leader expelled by Israeli authorities nine days ago in the wake of an attack on Jewish settlers in Hebron returned to Amman Monday after an unsuccessful attempt to re-enter West Bank territory.

The mayors of Hebron and Halhoul, Fahd Kawasmeh and Muhammad Melhem, and Sheikh Rajab Tamimi of the Hebron mosque went to the King Hussein (formerly the Allenby) Bridge across the Jordan River intending to cross to the occupied zone.

Israeli soldiers placed iron barriers across the access road and blocked all traffic between the two banks as soon as the three deportees, accompanied by several hundred supporters, arrived.

Board meets for state fishing company

By a staff writer

RIYADH, May 12 — The Board of Directors of the newly-formed Saudi Fishing Company met here Monday to discuss proposals to build up fishing centers on the eastern and western coasts and marketing centers in the coastal and upcountry towns.

The board met under Dr. Abdul Rahman

Al Sheikh, minister of agriculture and water.

The company formed earlier this year following approval by King Khaled with the intention of doubling Saudi Arabia's annual catch of 32,000 tons, of fish according to Dr. Nasser Al-Saleh, director general of agricultural development at the ministry.

At the time of the approval, Saleh said the government decided to go ahead with the venture after it came to the conclusion the country's fishing industry needed high technology and aggressive planning. It was the only option open both for improving yield and for bettering the standards of traditional fishermen.

The company will cover the process of getting the fish out of the sea and to the housewife. Onshore it will establish facilities for marketing catches. The company will fish with its own fleet as well as going into joint ventures with international fishing companies. On the seas it will enter joint ventures for fish exploitation. It will market both its own catches and those of private fishermen.

The initial size of the company's fleet has not yet been decided although the ultimate aim is to have between 100 and 150 vessels of different sizes. Its base will be at Jubail, with a second stage development covering the Jizan area, Jeddah will be third.

The company will have an initial paid capital of SR100 million, with an option for SR200 million. It will be eligible for government loans and the government will hold 40 per cent of the equity, with the remainder being sold at SR100 per share.

The company's purpose is twofold, according to Saleh — not only to improve the overall performance of Saudi fishing by its own fleet, but also to improve the performance of traditional fishermen through the force of organization and example. It was found this is the only method feasible for the latter objective, cooperatives having been ruled out as impractical.

Libya inspects local communication

JEDDAH, May 12 (SPA) — A Libyan delegation led by Abdul Rahman Al-Sharif, president of the Libyan telecommunications center visited the Directorate of Meteorology in Jeddah Monday. The Libyan delegation is here on a five-day visit to Saudi Arabia.

The delegation inspected the building of the general directorate, the main meteorology station, the telecommunications center and the correspondence center. Sharif and his delegation arrived in Jeddah Sunday.

Alitalia to introduce airbus service

JEDDAH, May 12 — Alitalia will introduce its airbus service June 11 on flights to Jeddah and later to Cairo, London and Paris, it was reported Monday.

Alitalia airline has taken delivery of the first of eight ordered European 250-seat airbuses, the airliner constructors said. The Italian airline will receive three other A300 airbuses this year and the following four in 1981 and 1982

The airbus was formally handed over to Alitalia Chairman Huberto Nordio by Airbus Industries President and Chief Executive Bernard Lathiere at a ceremony in Toulouse, southwest France. Alitalia, which signed a $320 million contract with Airbus Industries for the fleet and spare parts, is the 18th airline to operate the airbus.

Saudi Arabian missions abroad. Saudi Arabian airline offices, border checkposts and its airports are the Kingdom's facades that create the first and the lasting impression of the Kingdom. Considering the situation at the airports, the dealing of a Saudi Arabian travel office may be good, but the airport certainly does not present a pleasant facade. Officials do not do anything to improve the situation, as we see that elderly people, the handicapped, women and children are the last to reach the aircraft. I have even seen some still resting on the floor while others are queuing in for an entry into the plane.

At the border checkposts, you can see customs and immigration officials doing a good job, for example, at Halat Ammar checkpost in the north. But the policeman at the gate, who is supposed to accept the customs paper from travelers tries to stop them if he observes a slight dent in any car, although it is something beyond his jurisdiction. In such a case, the owner of the car cannot satisfy the policeman unless he succeeds in getting a 'go' signal from the superior or produces a certificate from the country he is leaving that his car has not been involved in an offense.

The in-flight service is good; so also is the treatment at immigration and customs desks, but travelers get confused when they have to deal with cabmen at the airports. Although the Saudi Public Transport Company ((SAPTCO) has toned down the greed of cab drivers, there are still some who demand SR 60 for a distance that is not worth more than SR15. The foreigners fall an easy prey to this phenomenon which ought to be solved.

Take also the case of seat-numbering in the planes. Our national carrier can easily do this on its international flights, to help in easing congestion and confusion and in giving a pleasant impression of one of the Kingdom's important facades. Once successful, numbering could be started on domestic flights also.

Muslim group to submit aide-memoir

JEDDAH, May 12 (SPA) — Secretary General of the Muslim World League Sheikh Muhammad Ali Al-Harakan said the League will submit an aide-memoir to the Islamic Foreign Ministers conference of Islamahad.

Foreign Ministers conference of Islamabad. In a statement Monday, Harakan said the memorandum will contain many Islamic issues, but the main topic will be the Communist invasion of Afghanistan and the dangers resulting from Communist plots in the Islamic world.

The memorandum will also deal with Israel's repeated aggression on Lebanon, the legitimate rights of the Palestinians. Israel's continuous threats to Jerusalem and its assault of the Aqsa Mosque and the Prophet Abraham's Mosque.

Harakan added that the League will also raise the issue of malicious campaigns against Islam and other matters connected with the Islamic universities in non-Islamic states.

The League chief is to leave for Pakistan Tuesday leading a delegation to the 11th session of the Islamic Foreign Ministers' conference

Jordan denies Time report on allowing commando raids

AMMAN, May 12 (R) - Jordanian officials said Monday there was no truth in a report by Time magazine that Jordan had agreed to allow Palestinian commandos to operate from its territory against the Israelioccupied West Bank.

The officials said that renewed Palestinian military presence in Jordan, which was ended in 1979, was cost of the question.

Kuwaiti newspapers Monday quoted Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan as denying the Time report.

Prince Hasses was quoted as saying: "The resumption of commando activities, which ended with the exit of the Palestinian resismace from Jordan in 1970, could result in a military adventure with Israel in which the Arabs would perhaps be the losers.

Sources in the prince's office confirmed that he had cautioned against rash action which could lead to a war with Israel for which the Arabs were ill-prepared.

At the same time, he told Kuwaiti journalists accompanying Knwait's Crown Prince Sheiki: Saad Al-Abdullah Al-Sabah on a visit to Amman that the right to resist Israeli occupation was sacred.

The sources quoted Prince Hassan as saying that Arabs living under Israeli occupation "have every right to express their indignation and abhorrence of occupation and Israel's oppressive measures against them."

Ex- GI killed in Hebron ambush

TEL AVIV, May 12 (AP) — Eli Haze'ev, an American immigrant killed in the May 2 ambush of Jewish settlers in the West Bank city of Hebron, had served as an FBI informer in the United States, the Israeli newspaper Maariv reported.

It quoted Haze ev's father, retired U.S. Air Force Col. James A. Mahon of Virginia as saying his son was " planted ' by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in a radical organization that planned to explode bombs in government buildings in the Washington area in 1972.

Haze'ev, one of six settlers killed in the Hebron ambush, came to Israel after the 1973 Mideast war and changed his name from James Eli Malone to the Hebrew name Eli Haze'ev, Maariv said. It reported he was a 32-year-old Vietnam war veteran who had been wounded in combat.

Haze'ev was living in the Kiryat Arba settlement outside the Palestinian city of Hebron on the West Bank of the Jordan River and was leaving a prayer service with other members of the settlement when they were e anbushed by Palestinian liberation fighters.

Chadli given full freedom on agriculture reform

ALGIERS, May 12 (AFP) — The Central Committee of Algeria's ruling National Lib-eration Front (FLN) has given President Chadli Benjedid complete freedom to change the organization of the country's agriculture. a key and controversial sector of Algeria's есопошу.

The dispute is among those who favor "continuity at any price" and those who favor a certain liberalization of agricultural bureaucracy. The central committee, Algeria's highest ruling body, at its first regular session this year, also entirely backed the president regarding cultural problems illustrated by the recent Berber unrest at Tizi Ouzou. The committee forcefully reaffirmed predominance of the Arab language.

The agricultural problems, which have for some years been a headache for the country's rulers and the cause of grumbling by the public, were at the center of the central committee meeting.

While declaring itself politically in favor of the "agricultural revolution" launched in 1971, and for self-management in agriculture, the committee also envisaged a series of measures and reforms aimed at easing restrictions, often of a bureaucratic nature. on agricultural development.

The committee agreed to give full power to the government to take "urgent and indispensable decisions to put structures and socialist agricultural enterprises back in order."

It also called on the national assembly to take all appropriate necessary legislative measures aimed at freeing the agricultural sector of internal and external constraints hindering its socialist development."

Saturday, a communique issued here said the Moroccans had killed or wounded more than 450 of the Algerian-backed guerrillas since the offensive begun last Tuesday, It said Moroccan losses were 36 dead and 40 wounded.

(The Polisario, which is fighting for the independence of the Western Sahara from Morocco, claimed in Algiers on Friday that its guernillas had repelled the offensive, killing 327 Moroccan soldiers and destroying more than 50 military vehicles.)

The drive involves an estimated 10,000 Moroccan troops, supported by armor, artillery and aircraft. It is aimed at climinating Polisario guerrillas who have infiltrated the mountainous Quarkeziz area of southern Morocco, close to the Algerian border.

Genocide

Meanwhile, an Algerian newspaper, citing a report from the Sahrawi Red Crescent, said Monday Sahrawi people in south Morocco are threatened with "genocide" by the Moroccan authorities.

The paper made no reference to the fighting in the Ouarkeziz area. Its report centered on the civilian Sahrawi peoples whom it said suffered daily "executions" and "reprisals" by Moroccan military authorities.

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP) - Four Libyans ordered to leave the United States for allegedly harassing Libyan dissidents here left the country Sunday night, ending a dip-lomatic incident that threatened relations between the two countries.

The four Libyans, who worked for the Libyan diplomatic mission in Washington, were ordered out of the country last week but refused to leave on grounds they weren't diplomats and had done no wrong. Agents of the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) then surrounded the Libyan "people's burean" where they worked and said they would arrest the men if they stepped outside.

As tensions mounted, Libyan leader Col. Muammar Qaddafi even threatened to cut off oil supplies to the United States. But on Friday, the two governments reached an agree-

The 28-year-old Rogers shot 70-67 for a 12/5 total as he again finished second. Watn's 72-hole total of 274 earned him 4,000 and put his winnings at $1,971,958. e also won a golf ball made of silver, gold d diamonds worth another $25,000.

The only other golfers ahead of Watson on Le all-time money list are Jack Nicklaus with million and Lee Trevino with $ 2.4 million. Again, a hole-out was the key to Watson's und, much as it had been Friday when he 'led an eight-iron for an eagle deuce, and turday when he knocked in pitching wedge a birdie

On the second round Sunday, a chip shot hit from 60 feet (18.2 meters) away hit the 1 and went into the hole for a birdie, leaving lying partners 25-year-old Curtis Strange d 29-year-old George Burns shaking their ads. Strange, who won the Houston Open t week in a playoff with Lee Trevino, rted the day a shot behind in a head-toad pairing with Watson, shooting 70 in the orning round but soaring to four-over 74 on : second round.

3ill Kratzert finished third with a two-Jer par 68 in the morning and a one-over 71 in the afternoon for a three-under par al of 277. George Cadle was fourth with unds of 67-72 for 278.

starting with the seventh hole on the final and. Watson missed the green on four of holes. He saved par from a bunker with a r-foot (2.3 meters) putt, chipped in on other, bogeyed a hole, then chipped to hin five feet and made the putt.

Sibling rivalry: Braves down Astros 7-4

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP) — Phil Niekro outdueled his younger brother Joe, hurling a seven-hitter to give the Atlanta Braves a 7-4 victory over the Houston Astros Sunday. It was the eighth time that the brothers had faced each other in their National League careers, and each now has won four. It was only the second complete game of the year for Phil Niekro, 2-4. Joe Niekro, 4-2, was chased in a four-run Atlanta sixth inning after giving up eight hits. Luiz Gomez singled in two of the runs and Jerry Royster tripled home the other two. Gary Matthews and Bob Horner, each making his first start for the Braves since April 26, figured in the Braves' go-ahead run in the fifth inning. With two out, Horner wound up on second base on an error by Houston third baseman Enos Cabell. Matthews then drilled a single to score Horner to snap a 2-2 tie.

In other National League action, pitcher Dick Ruthven drove in a pair of run with a second-inning single as the Philadelphia Phil-lies defeated the Cincinnati Reds 7-3. Shortstop Gary Templeton bobbled Steve Garvey's two out grounder for an error, opening the gates for a four-run Los Angeles first inning and the Dodgers went on to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Larry Herndon, a last-minute replacement for Jack Clark, doubled to trigger a three-run sixth inning and Ed Whitson posted his first victory after five losses as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-0. Jerry Mumphrey capped a three-run first inning with a two-run single and Randy Jones picked up his third win of the year with a six-hitter as the San Diego Padres whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0. Rain washed out a doubleheader between the New York Mets and Montreal Expos.

In the American League, unbeaten Tommy John tossed a six-hitter for his third shutout and sixth victory of the season and Ruppert Jones drove in three runs to pace the New York Yankees to a 5-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins. A two-run homer by Fred Lynn and a run-scoring single by Rick Burleson keyed a three-run third inning that carried the Boston Red Sox to a 5-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Dick Davis singled and scored the go ahead run in the seventh on a grounder by Sal Bando and Larry Hisle slammed a two-run homer, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a

5-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Dan Petry hurled a four-hitter for his first major league shutout as the Detroit Tigers defeated California 4-0, the slumping Angles' sixth consecutive loss. Unbeaten Mike Norris continued his stingly pitching and sailed to his fifth victory with a seven-hitter as the Oakland A's battered the Toronto Blue Jays 12-1 in a battle of American League division leaders.

Jim Beattie, with relief help from Shane Rawley in the seventh inning, picked up his first victory in a Seattle uniform as the Mariners beat the Cleveland Indians 9-4. In an AL night game, Doc Medich and Sparky Lyle scattered six hits and John Ellis drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to lead the Texas Rangers to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

BEHIND SADAT'S MOVE

The immediate reason for President Sadat's suspension of the Palestinian "autonomy" talks with Israel is his awareness, so long evaded, of the intrinsic futility of the task. But a no less important reason is his realization that the United States is about to change tacks on the Middle East. The Egyptian president's move anticipates such a possibility. He does not want to be caught on the wrong side of the fence in the event of the Americans crossing over from the fatally restricted Camp David side.

Washington sources agree that a general reevaluation of America's foreign policy, especially on the Middle East, is in the offing. The present administration is sufficiently confident about its chance for reelection to begin planning for the future. In addition to its attempt to restart a dialogue with the Soviet Union, it has seen the necessity of easing its strained relations with many of the countries of the Middle East, with whom it had so many interests in common. It has realized that a continuation of the futile Camp David formula would do nothing but endanger those interests, as well as bring the area as a whole to the verge of a new explosion.

A dramatic illustration of this came in the speech given by President Carter in Philadelphia, in which he returned to the theme of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people, and warned that a delay in their obtainment would only strengthen extremism in the area. The administration has recalled the American ambassadors in both Egypt and Israel for consultations, and the ambassadors to other countries in the area are to follow them soon.

The U.S. administration must be aware that the abandonment of the Camp David formula and the start for a new initiative for a comprehensive and just peace settlement will be rejected by Israel; and that a just solution, in which even the minimum of Arab demands are accommodated can only be imposed on the Israelis. The administration's change of heart on this question will remain a matter of words only, unless it was willing to go all the way in forcing Israel to respect international law and concede the right of the Palestinians to a state of their own in which they can fulfill their national destiny.

Mrs. Thatcher's nagging splits Europe

By Robert Stephens

LUXEMBOURG -The European Community summit meeting here recently wasn't much of an advertisement for European diplomacy

Its break-up in angry disagreement over Britain's contribution to the Community budget did nothing to enhance the international political image of the West after the fiasco of the American rescue raids in Iran and the resignation of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

The meeting of the nine heads of government, including Britain's Margaret Thatcher, the French President Giscard d'Estaing, and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, with Italian Premier Francesco Cossiga in the chair, missed a double opportunity. First, a settlement of the British claim to a reduced net contribution to the Community hadget - currently estimated at over $ 2,250 million would have removed a serious obstacle to the Community's cohesion and future internal development and eliminated a source of rancor between its leading members, especially Britain and

Second, a display of European unity and readiness to put its own house in order, would have shown realism and a sense of proportion at a time of world crisis. It would have strengthened the ability of Europe's leaders to play a more active moderating, mediating and supporting role in relation to the United States' dealings with Iran, the Middle East and the Soviet Union.

The sad fact is that agreement was almost within the grasp of the Nine. The summit came, in the words of Roy Jenkins, the president of the European Commission, "tantalizingly" close to agreement and the disappointment at its failure was all

The dark international outlook seemed to be encouraging the Europeans to make a supreme effort to settle their own problems, thus freeing their hands to deal with bigger international tasks at a time when United States leadership and diplomacy had hit rock bottom.

The preceding summit in Dublin last December had ended in acrimonious division, with Mrs. Thatcher sticking firmly to her claim for the refund of $ 2.250 million of "our money". She had been offered some $ 790 million from the mechanism established in 1975 to compensate poor countries whose budget contribution was a disproportionate burden. In addition there had been discussion of some extra money from increased Community spending in Britain.

Giscard wanted any rebate to be a once-only payment. Thatcher was pressing for a long-term arrangement - to last at least until agreement was reached on reform of the budget structure and its 70 per cent expenditure on farm support under the Common Agricultural Policy. The main reason for Britain's deficit is that, with fewer farmers and a high level of food imports from outside the Community, it gets less back and pays in more than any other Community member, including the richest, France and Germany. By the time the last meeting began here lowerlevel diplomacy had revealed what appeared to be the framework of an agreement consisting of the three elements. 1. The financial mechanisms which might cut $

790 million from the deficit. 2. Increased Community spending in Britain on projects which further Community aims, such as "convergence" between the richer and poorer economies of the Community, developing transport and expanding coal and other energy production. 3. A long-term penotiation to re structure and agricultural policy, which would remove the main cause of the British deficit. There was speculation that this package might bring Britain a rebate of between $ 1,350 and $ 1.700 million. Would Mrs. Thatcher accept less than the whole loaf? There were two other important elements in the negotiations, apart from the amounts of money. One was the duration of any agreement. Thatcher wanted a six-year agreement with provision for review in the light of progress in reforming the budget. The French wanted a shorter period of one or two years.

The other element was the French insistence on linking a budget solution with a settlement of all other outstanding Community problems - especially farm prices, fisheries policy and lamb market-

Thatcher rejected any formal linkage, arguing that these other matters should be discussed in parallel with the budget "in the same time-scale."

The British were pressing for a freeze on all surplus farm products, milk, sugar and wine, and a price increase of not more than the 2.4 per cent proposed by the Commission. Europe's farmers were lobbying hard for a nearly 7 per cent price increase, and in their meetings here the eight agricultural ministers, with Britain disagreeing, settled on a 4.5 per cent

One reason for Britain's opposition to linking a deal over the budget with an increase in farm prices was the fear that the inevitable increase in Community spending on agriculture would reduce the value of any rebate Britain might get. This fear would have been removed by the ingenious new formula presented by the French, under which agreement would be expressed in the form of a ceiling to Britain's net contribution rather than in terms of a rebate; it would not rise with & in farm prices (though the latter would mean hi food prices in Britain, as in other member c tries).

The quid pro quo was that Britain should li veto on the proposed increase in farm prices drop its insistence on a freeze on surplus produ

Germany agreed to negotiate on this basis, though it meant Germany would have had to most of the bill - to pay the British and to finthe Common Agricultural Policy and French mers. A dozen or so variations, with differents of money coupled with different duration and ditions, were tried and failed, mostly rejected

After hours of prolonged haggling, Giscard Schmidt came up with a joint proposal, their offer. This would have given Thatcher a three-quarters of the $ 2,250 million she had asking for, provided she accepted a 5 per increase in farm prices.

To general astonishment and exasperation rejected this, too. Its duration after the first years, she said, was not clearly enough define So the talks broke down, and Giscard Schmidt swore not to discuss the matter again i summit council. Chinese to lose Four Big Freedoms

LONDON -

China's citizens are being informed that their constitutionally guaranteed Four Big Freedoms "prevent the enjoyment of democratic rights." These announcements cap the effort to excise from the Chinese constitution the right "to speak out freely, air views fully, hold debates, and write big-character posters." The end is near for these unique forms of communication in Chinese mass

The Four Bigs or Rights, as they came to be known, emerged in the late 1950s during the Hundred Flowers, a time in which, to Mao Tsetung's surprise, intellectuals took advantage of a brief thaw to question the course of the revolution.

It is now claimed that the Four Bigs were criminally misused during the subsequent anti-rightist movement, which witnessed the disgrace and banishment of thousands.

Although he admits that many errors were committed at that tme, Vice-Premier Deng Xiaoping has reiterated that the 1957 campaign itself was necessary to restore order and discipline, two of the current party watchwords. Rather than insuring against the misuse of the constitutional guarantees. however, the party has decided to get rid of them. We made a mistake there," Deng says.

How is it that such guarantees, in the words of a key official, "created an opportunity for some people to encourage factionalism, confusion, and disruption in work, education, and scientific research?"

It is alleged that some especially "bad elements" (a constitutionally proscribed criminal class of unclear definition) took advantage of the Four Bigs to compose big-character posters designed to leak party and state secrets. The imprisoned dissident Wei Jingsheng, who posted his views at the nowdismantled Democracy Wall, is named as one such 'bad person".

Other "bad people" exploiting the Four Big Freedoms framed the innocent, masterminded an infinity of legal miscarriages, and generally transformed the Bigs into "four stone blocks or four iron rods weighing on the backs of the people."

Saudi press review

A majority of newspapers Monday led with Crown Prince Fahd's interview with the Qatari newspaper Al Raya dealing with the need for self-defense in the Gulf. They also gave prominence to the Crown Prince's advice that Arabs must not lose their independence in trying to avoid the Soviet threat. In a lead story, Al Yom reported that Zionist authorities forcibly stopped three expelled Palestinians from entering occupied Palestine.

The newspapers frontpaged King Khaled's welcome to South Korean President Choi Kyu-Hah, who arrived in Riyadh Sunday on a three-day official visit to Saudi Arabia. They also gave front-page play to an agreement signed between the defense ministers of Saudi Arabia and France to equip the Royal Saudi Navy. The Israeli authorities' forcible ban on the expelled Palestinian leaders from entering the occupied territory figured prominently in the news-

The South Korean president's visit to the Kingdom was a major topic in the newspaper editorials Monday. Some editorials concentrated on the third development plan and the Crown Prince's interview with the Qatari paper. The Lebanese situation and the expelled Palestinian leaders' bid to enter Palestine were also dealt with in some editorials.

In an editorial, Al Jazirah spelled out the hope that South Korea will announce its recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization during its president's current visit to Saudi Arabia. The paper said the Korean recognition Arab-Korean will reinforce ties in general and Saudi-Korean relations in particular. Welcoming the presidential visit, the paper said the Arabs cannot but praise Korea, which has invariably supported the principles of right, justice and freedom and endorsed the legitimate rights of the people of Palestine.

On the same subject, Okaz, boped that the Korean leader's visit and his talks with Saudi leaders will further strengthen the bonds of friendship and cooperation between the two countries. The paper lauded South Korea's successful experience in the field of development and its determination to be self-sufficient despite limited resources.

Commenting on the Crown Prince's talk with the Qatari paper, Al Nadwa endorsed his views that the Arabs must not lose their independence in trying to avert the Soviet threat. The paper highlighted the Crown Prince's strong views that the people of the Gulf must defend themselves without the presence of alien military powers on their soil.

The paper said Prince Fahd made it clear that Saudi Arabians and their brothers in the Gulf states can never bargain their sovereignty and independence for the sake of warding off the Soviets. It reaffirmed that the people of the region will be ready to sacrifice all against those who dare grasp at the warm waters of the Gulf.

On the third development plan, Al Medina said the success of the earlier plans has shown that bringing progress and prosperity to a country like Saudi Arabia is not an easy task. The strides the country has made in both material and moral fields in only a few years was striking if measured with the standards of normal growth, the paper said.

Al Bilad emphasized that the success of the plan is mainly dependent on Saudi Arabians, as the state has planned soundly and has been liberal in its expenditure for the country's development. The paper stressed that the nations are not built only on material resources, but also and most importantly on will and determi-

Dealing with Lebanon, Al Riyadh said the main stumbling block to reconciliation is the sponsorship by the Phalangists and Israel of the militia leader Saad Haddad. It said the interaction between Israel and the Phalangists provides a base for Israeli provocations in South Lebanon and stops the Lebanese regular army and the peacekeeping force from carrying out their mission.

Al Yom dwelled on the expelled Palestinian leaders peaceful march toward their homeland, and said that their march was not only a demonstration, as some might think, but also reassuring proof of the spirit of steadfastness in the Arabs and their determination to face the challenges. The paper urged the Palestinians in particular and the Arabs in general to take pride in this new form of resistance and to stand as one man in the facce of the enemy who has usurped the Arab and Islamic

But Binaisa aide claims civilians still hold power

KAMPALA, May 12 (AP) - A spokesman for soldiers loyal to army Chief of Staff David Oyite Ojok said Monday they were in full control of Uganda, but an aide to civilian President Godfrey Binaisa said Binaisa was still freely exercising the powers of his office.

Soldiers backing Ojok held control of the government radio station and Kampala's main post office for the second day, although few soldiers were seen on the streets. Many office workers stayed home and the capital remained quiet.

"The military commission is in full control of the country," the spokesman said in Kampala. He said the commission was in continuous session and was deciding its actions by unanimous votes.

Binaisa was at his official residence in Entebbe, (32 kilomteres) away from Kampala. He was reported Sunday under the protection of soldiers from neighboring Tan-

Asked whether Binaisa continued to act as president, an aide, reached by telephone, replied: "Oh, yes."

Despite a military call for Ugandans to go to work as usual, streets were nearly deserted in Kampala and few cars were running at 8:30 a.m., when the city of 400,000 is usually bustling. Most taxis were not operating.

Banks, government offices and many shops opened an hour later, although many were short of workers. The post office, on the main street, remained closed under military guard. An employee of a central Kampala hotel

Binaisa received Tanzanian endorsement to succeed Lule. But the British-trained lawyer, who spent most of the Amin years in the United States, has failed to curb inflation, large-scale corruption and repeated waves of

Yugoslavia to change presidents Thursda

BELGRADE, May 11 (AFP) — The naming of a new head of state — for a year only will mark the resumption this week of political activity in Yugoslavia after a lull during President Josip Broz Tito's four-month illness and a complete halt of several days after his death.

The occasion will provide an opportunity for his successors to prove the continuous functioning of the complex political system aimed at assuring the unity of this multinational country.

Lazar Kolisevski, of Macedonian nationality, who became chairman of the "presidential state college" with Tito's death, will in the envisaged course of events be replaced on Thursday, while at the same time remaining one of the college's eight members.

This organ represents the six republics and two regions of the federal Yugoslav state.

It was expected here Monday that Cvijetin Mijatovic, a Bosnian and former editor of Kormunist, the principal organ of the Yugoslay League of Communists, who is former ambassador in Moscow and became vicepresident on May 4, would be named Yugoslavia's new head of state.

However, the possibility that the post will go to 66-year old Sergej Krajger, who represents Slovenia and has held important positions at individual republic and federal level, was not excluded.

Yugoslavia's new president, whose function will not solely be that of a figurehead

The new president will also not hold the title of chairman of the League of Communists, the country's sole ruling party, as did

Meanwhile, as implementation of the constitution to which Tito attached such importance gets under way, normal diplomatic activity is resuming in Belgrade.

The body of 58-year-old Rafael D. Trujillo was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter from a 24-foot boat en route to Key West from the Cuban port of Mariel with no refugees. Coast Guard officials said.

"The boat apparently had lost its way and the crew was disoriented," said Lt. I.G. Nimick. "They saw a tugboat pulling a barge and went over to ask directions.

Many of the young men said they were from Combinado Del Este, a large Cuban prison. Other arrivals said they were former inmates, who had been told they could either leave Cuba or return to jail.

In other developments the Bahama's government has sent a strongly worded note to Cuba protesting at "the grave violation of Bahamian sovereignty and international laws." following the sinking of a Bahamian patrol boat over the weekend and the harrassment by Cuban aircraft of one of the islands in the archipelago.

WWII soldier found in Philippine jungle

MANILA, Philippines, May 12 (AP) -The Filipino military claims it has found a former Japanese soldier who stayed in a Philippine jungle after World War II. The Japanese embassy said Monday it is not convinced.

"I have no information that he is Japanese," said Dr. Yoshi Hirose, an embassy first secretary who handles such cases. He said he plans to visit Mindoro Island, 135 kilometers south of Manila, to try and verify the Philippine constabulary claim.

Hirose said Isao Miyazawa, a former intelligence captain in the Japanese Imperial Army, reported by messenger that he met Saturday with the man, whom he identified as a member of a primitive Mangyan tribe named Mondoka.

"The message gave no information whether he is Japanese or Mangyan." said

Soviet intervention on agenda NATO prepares for Muskie

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 12 (AP) -It is billed as the Western alliance's first high-level conference in response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

But Wednesday's joint meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign and defense ministers may be remembered instead as the alliance's first response to Edmund S, Muskie. The new U.S. Secretary of State, sworn in Thursday, will be undertaking his first foreign mission under the scrutiny of his counterparts from the 14 other NATO nations.

"The purpose of the meeting is to register solidarity within the alliance in regard to recent events in Afghanistan," a NATO diplomat said. "But what everyone will probably be focussing on is Muskie."

When Muskie's predecessor, Cyrus R. Vance, resigned to protest the Iran policy of the administration of President Jimmy Carter, leaders of several NATO countries, including Britain, West Germany and Italy, issued statements of regret. Vance's low key approach to diplomacy suited the European style.

"Of course there will be comparisons between the two - Muskie and Vance," said the diplomat, who asked that his name not be published. "It's only natural."

At the meeting, the allies are expected to announce a series of long and shortterm responses to Soviet activities in Afghanistan, which have rekindled fears of Russian armed might in the United States and Eestern Europe.

The measures, described by one official as "unspectacular," are believed to fall into the category of acceleration - by months or years - of previously agreedupon plans.

Most of them are designed to increase allied strength in European defense and to make up for any potential diversion of U.S. forces to other parts of the world. But officials are quick to point out there are no plans to reduce U.S. strength in Europe or shift 300,000 U.S soldiers in Europe to fight small wars in other parts of the world. The changes would involve U.S. soldiers in domestic U.S. posts earmarked for deployment to Europe in case of emergency.

Officials in Brussels and Washington say the measures likely to be agreed on include a strengthening of the number of training programs of reservists in Europe to make them able to respond more quickly to an invasion. Sharpening of NATÓ readiness, for example, equipment needed for a response would be shifted from warehouses to trucks to cut down supply lines and the time needed to prepare military hardware for use. An increase in funds for electronic warfare. such as jamming stations that interrupt a potential enemy's communication system. An increase in stockpiles of ammunition available for instant use in case of war. Some nations with stocks for a 30-day fight would be asked to increase their at-hand stocks to a 90-day supply.

The long-term measures would include a renewed commitment by all NATO nations to increase their defense spending by 3 per cent as they agreed to do at a summit meeting in Washington in 1978.

The Europeans may also agree to institute contingency plans touse their nations' civilian wide-bodier

"This is not a case where the United States comes in with a shopping list and the allies are asked to agree to them." the diplomat said. "These things have been in the planning stages for a long time and a lot of work has gone into them.

Panchayat takes lead in Nepal

KATHMANDU, May 12 (AFP) — Latest official results in Nepal's May 2 referendum on whether to introduce a multi-party political system show the current partyless Panchayat option leading by 150,000 votes.

However, with results in from 30 out of 75 districts the multi-party option was ahead in the major cities. In Kathmandu out of the 159,980 votes cast it drew 83,884 votes and the Panchayat 68,140, the remainder were declared invalid.

In two other cities in the Kathmandu valley, Patan and Bhaktapur, plurality polled an average of 58 per cent, although its followers had expected to win between 80 and 90 per

The multi party system was also said to be leading in Tanahu, Sarlahi. Udayapur, Sirah, Bharatpur, Morang and Sunsari districts, in the lowland Terai regions.

Panchayat's defeat in Kathmandu was compensated by 69 per cent of votes in Narayani (Birgung) bordering Raxaul, the northern rail head of India.

New trouble brewing Sweden strike ends

STOCKHOLM, May 12 (R) - Nearly a million Swedish workers returned to their jobs Monday ending the country's biggest ever labor dispute, but it could take weeks for the nation to get back to normal. The Swedish Employers Federation (SAF) last night rejected proposals put forward by government mediators but then reversed its decision after a government plea to end the industrial

The employers initially said the 6.8 per cent wage rises would force up the price of goods and indirectly harm Swedish exports and the economy in general. The agreement

Soviets plan reform move for oil export

MALMOE, Sweden, May 12 (R) - The Soviet Union is carrying out a radical reform of its oil industry that will guarantee it clientele as a net exporter of oil throughout the coming decade, according to a report published here Monday. A Swedish research company specializing in monitoring the Soviet petroleum industry, Petrostudies, said the reform means a completely new economic approach to the exploitation of mineral resources in the Soviet Union, a drastic increase in domestic prices for crude and more efficient exploitation of oil fields. The new policies, based on a planning document that came into force last November, "will put an end to 30 years of systematic underexploitation of oilfields." the 260-page report said. The increase in the price of crude, which has remained stable for 13 years at the equivalent of $2.75 per barrel. probably would not be passed along to the consumer of refined oil but might be reflected in a decreased profit margin in the refining industry.

In the public sector a further 26,000 workers will go back to their jobs for the first time since April 25, after both sides accepted a 7.3 per cent increase. Television programs other than news resumed, and the country's airports reopened Sunday night. The Stockholm underground railway also reopened Monday.

But hospitals face mountains of dirty laundry and a backlog of non-emergency operations which could last into the autumn. The Transport Union, which Friday halted deliveries of oil and gasoline, said its members would return to work Monday.

But it will take weeks to get three of the four closed oil refineries back into operation, and there are fears that gasoline could become scarce before then.

Meanwhile, the 2,500-strong Swedish Harbor Workers Union which is not an LO member, said it would strike as soon as the lockout ended, closing the country's big ports to back their demands for more moneys and the right to negotiate their own pay deal. union officials said.

The conflict of the last 10 days had shut down 90 per cent of Swedish industry, stopped imports and exports, closed mines and halted building works. The Employers Federation estimated it cost the country 400-600 million crowns ($ 95-$ 140 million) daily.

With the announcement that the U.S.-Saudi Arabian $ 100 million five-year joint solar energy program is now under way - 2$ 16.5 million contract has already been awarded for the construction of a solar village in Saudi Arabia. The Middle East has become the focal point of world solar development. Large-scale research activity is taking place throughout the Middle East with over 30 universities and 20 government research centers currently involved in addition to numerous government ministries and public national oil companies.

The most significant national exhibitor group to confirm its participation in Soltech 80 are the French, under the auspices of the Commissariat A L'Energie Solaire (COMES), which is returning this year with an even larger space requirement. Between 16 and 20 companies are expected to exhibit a wide range of technology including photovoltaics, solar water heating systems, collector panels, telecommunications applications.

solar pumps and solar desalination. The exhibition has attracted international support especially from the U.K., Australia, Japan and the U.S.A.

Soltech '80 will be supported by a high technology conference, the theme of which will be "Solar Energy in Construction." Delegates will hear papers presented by world authorities on solar technology including Dr. Bill Charters (President of the International Solar Energy Society), Dr. George Lof (Colorado State University, U.S.A.), Dr. Fawaz Alamy (King Abdul Aziz University Jeddah) and Dr. Ali Sayigh (University of Riyadh). A new purpose-built air conditioned conference theatre is under construction inside the Exhibition Center Bahrain, which will ensure that all exhibitors # have an opportunity to meet conference :- ? delegates as well as the trade show visitors, Soltech '80 will be a feature of Arabbuild 80, a repeat of the highly successful Middle East Building and Construction Industry Exhibition first held in November 1978 which is sponsored and supported by the Housing and Public Works Ministries of Bahrain, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. The Soltech pavilion provides over 1,500 square meters of both inside and outside space.

Sales percentage up for luxury cars

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP) - In Beverly Hills, California, where luxury cars like Ferraris, Lamborghinis and Bentleys are as common as pain trees, a wealthy accountant who wanted something a bit different ordered a $55,000 Evolution I — a car custom-designed by Pierre Cardin.

The accountant is among the well-heeled few who are keeping the luxury car market alive - if barely - at a time when American auto sales are collapsing.

"As far as our share of the luxury market. we're doing better now than a year ago There are fewer total buyers in this market. but we're getting a good share." says a spokesman for Cadillac in Detroit.

The same is true across the industry. Fancy-car sales are down, but their percentage of the total market is up, probably because for many of those who think about buying a luxury car, money is not an issue.

Many even pay the full price - up to almost $150,000 for the top Rolls Royce - in cash. Car sales in the United States fell from a projected annual rate of about 10.8 million before March 14 to about 8.3 million in April. The crackdown on credit by the

ter has squeezed many potential car buyers out of the market. Limits on overall growth in lending have led banks to impose tougher standards on borrowers, require higher down payments and, some areas, stopping retail a dealer loans altogether.

But Rolls Royce sales in the United State: will be down by only about 100 from las: year's 1,100, said Reg Abbiss of Rolls Royce Incorporated. About one-third of the British-produced cars are sold in the United States, he said.

"It's a mixture of old and new money," Abbiss said, "celebrities, pop (music) groups The biggest sales in the United States are in Newport Beach and Beverly Hills, Califor

After runoff election

Hard-liners fill Iran Majlis

TEHRAN, May 12 (AP) - Hard-line Islamic fundamentalists have won a majority in the new Islamic parliament, Radio Tehran reported Monday. The official Iranian radio said that with returns in from all but 25 of the 247 seats being filled now in the Majlis, or parliament, the Islamic Republican party had won a total of 110 and Muslim fundamentalists running as independents had won enough more to give the IRP a majority.

The IRP won 50 of the 98 seats decided in the first round of voting March 14. In runoff elections in 149 other districts Friday, Radio Tehran said the IRP had won 60 of the 124 seats decided by noon Sunday, and most of the others went to independents.

The Majlis at full strength is to have 270 members, but the runoffs in 23 districts were postponed because of unsettled conditions or charges of irregularities in the first round of voting. But the constitution provides that the legislature can convene as soon as two-thirds of the members, or 180, are elected.

Ayatollah Khomeini and other leaders of his revolutionary regime have said that the Mailis will decide what is to be done with the 53 members of the staff of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran who Monday spent their 191st day as hostages. But no decision appears likely before late June or July.

The U.S. government had hoped that supporters of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr would win a sizable bloc of seats since he is considered a pragmatic moderate who wants to end the hostage crisis so he can get on with trying to restore the shattered Iranian economy. But many of the Islamic fundamentalists want the hostages tried as spies unless the United States forces Egypt to return the former Shab to Iran and also turns over the

LOS ANGELES, May 12 (OFNS) -Actor Steve McQueen says he had an attack of "terminal fury" on reading a recent story in the National Enquirer, America's top-selling newspaper. It reported that the 49year-old star, once a heavy smoker, was suffering from terminal lung cancer. "It's ridiculous. A cruel lie," said McQueen. To prove it, he plans a multimillion dollar lawsuit against the weekly, which is bought by nearly five million Ameri-

McQueen will not be alone. An inflamed and growing band of film and television celebrities has declared war on the sensational tabloid in a battle reminiscent of the days when Hollywood ganged up to sue Con - fidential magazine into extinction. At least eight big show-business names are sueing the Enquirer for a total of more than $66 million in what could prove a major test case of America's notoriously easy-going

"I don't know anyone in the industry who isn't behind us," says Marty Ingels, a top Hollywood agent who is married to actress Shirley Jones. Together, they're sueing for $20 million. The Enquirer said Jones (of Caronsel and other classic musicals) had become "a crying drunk."

Others pitching in include: Actress Carol Burnett, who wants $10 million damages because the Enquirer claimed she had a drunken set-to in a Washington restaurant with Henry Kissinger, then dumped a glass of wine over a guest.

Veteran actor Rory Calhoun, who has filed suit for an identical sum over a story saying he had cancer. "A lie," says Calhoun, "that cost me four TV roles." Comedian Phil Silvers, also seeking $10 million because the Enquirer called him, among much else, "a has-been."

Behind them come a gaggle of TV per-sonalities known to millions of Americans.

Since surveys show the Enquirer's vast readership consists mostly of housewives in the 25-45 age group, America's most ardent TV-watchers, the showbiz assault could mean serious trouble. But owner-publisher of the immensely profitable paper, Generoso Pope, 51, does not appear too worried. A former CIA operative, Pope bought the ailing Enquirer from the Hearst Corporation 28 years ago and sent its circulation soaring with a blend of smut, sadism and gore which became known in the trade as the " I-ate-my-baby syndrome." In the Seventies, Pope, father of five children, cleaned up the paper's act, switching to a broader mix of celebrity gossip, practical advice "help your marriage survive holiday stress," and cheap thrills "I was abducted by space dwarfs and examined on their UFO for two hours."

Up went circulation again. That sort of success invites competition. Rupert Murdoch

Treetop landing ends successful balloon voyage

MATANE, Quebec, May 12 (AP) -Maxie Anderson and his son Kris landed the 'Kitty Hawk' safely in a treetop near the St. Lawrence River in eastern Canada Monday, ending the first non-stop balloon flight across North America.

The balloon came in at 7:25 a.m. local time on the wooded edge of a clearing 9.6 km east of Matane in Quebec. Both men were uninjured. They were unshaven, reddened by wind and looked tired.

Matane is about 458 km northeast of Bangor, Maine, an about 1,770 km north of the planned landing site in Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. Unexpected winds had carried the balloon far north of the plotted flight path for the last half of the 4,827 km journey.

The Andersons left San Francisco early Thursday. "Trying to get into the clearing was a problem" Max Anderson said of the landing. The helicopter pilots helped us get out of the He apparently referred to Canadian armed forces helicopters who had been stationed in the area since early this morning to await the landing.

Maxie Anderson, in a navy blue parka and a green striped turtle-neck shirt, was ferried by helicopter to the airport at Matane, where he embraced his wife Patty. His son stayed with the balloon.

Asked what his next goal was, the elder Anderson replied, "I think I'm going to go home to bed."

Anderson, who won fame two years ago with two other men by becoming the first to cross the Atlantic in a balloon, said crossing the continent was tougher.

"In the Atlantic you just get up and go" he said. "There is no altitude problem." Matane is on the Gaspe Peninsula, near where the St. Lawrence meets the Atlantic

Because of the hilly, wooded terrain of the surrounding country, Anderson, 45, and his son, 23, apparently considered landing in the river but after dawn they decided they could make the dearing.

The Andersons had announced their landing plan in a radio message that was monitored aboard the plane taking Mrs. Anderson to the remote area.

magazines such as People and Us further eroded Enquirer sales.

When these fell below five million some 18 months ago, Pope ordered his large staff into the fray with the command: "Wash some dirty linen." Sizzling exposes along the lines of those in the old Confidential were sought. Pope pays well for the goods, and he got his tales of mishap and misbehavior. But could he also get sued out of business, like Confi dential in the 1950's, when lawsuits by Robert Mitchum and others halted lubricious stories and sent circulation plummeting from four million to 300,000?

Lawyers in the case believe that is highly unlikely. The Enquirer has a large factchecking and research staff and requires at least two sources for gossip items. They also say the paper has not lost a lawsuit in three years.

But in taking a stand the celebrities hope at least to muffle the Enquirer, at best to upset a 1964 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that public figures cannot collect libel damages without first proving "actual malice" in publication of defamatory material.

"That ruling." said Ingels, "is a licence for papers like the Enquirer to print just about anything they want about us.

Gold higher; interest rates hurt dollar

LONDON, May 12 (Agencies) — The dol-lar fell Monday on European foreign exchange markets, reflecting a downward trend in interest rates, Gold closed slightly higher in lethargic trading.

The U.S. currency had been boosted recently by rising interest rates which made it an attractive investment. In the past few weeks, however, the rates have been coming down. The prime rate slipped to 161/2 per cent Monday in New York.

London's five bullion houses announced a ne gold price of $513,50 a troy ounce, up from Friday's closing price of $510.50. Gold also traded higher in Zurich at $512.50 compared with $508.50 Friday. Earlier in Hong Kong, the metal dropped $2.90 to $507.46. Silver was worth $12.88 an ounce in London down from $13 late Friday.

The sporting event of the year in Britanis the Football Association Cup. Pub interest is so intense that I couldn't he being swept along. Since I don't really for low the sport closely here, it took sor time to decide which side to support Arsenal or West Ham. I finally support West Ham, having learned that they we considered the underdog, and that is i position we Arabs have been in these I few centuries. West Ham made it in event, with a one-zip win which had; cheering. When I pondered, will we able to put the ball of resolution into 4. goal-net of desire? (Don't worry. I tene ponder in this fashion at times. It se passes.)

My interest - and therefore satisf tion - in the whole affair remain somewhat academic. What really took fancy and made me feel more at home; another, more notorious soccer match refer, of course, to the yearly contest the football field between the two dubs Glasgow - Celtic and Rangers.

The reader, if not British will feel need of an explanation. And it is that C tic represents the Catholic Irish of that c while Rangers bears the colors of the f vently Protestant Scots. The mar therefore involves more than simple fo ball, more indeed than the long history conflict between the two sides. It is or seem to think the tens of thousands enthusiasts who attend the yearly battl direct expression of the eternal war t ween Good and Evil.

Thus when, after a hard-fought gas Celtic finally succeeded in scoring a goone side saw this as a clear mark of Div. Favor while the other, with equal e titude, saw it as a victory for the Prince Darkness, who had for that afternoonf saken his eternal abode to subvert Faith. Up, therefore, and at 'em. The raily, which ended in pandemonium. was organized by members of the Communist Khalq party with support of the Soviet intervention force to mark the second anniversary of the pro-Moscow April 27, 1978 revolution, the rebels said.

The situation in the province remained tense as Soviet helicopters made almost daily raids on Afghan villages to "avenge their defeat," Mujahiddin sources said.

The fighters also said that several Communist troops were killed Wednesday when about 40 Afghan troops mutinied and launched attacks on Soviet-Afghan positions in the area. The defectors came from forces sent by Kabul to attack freedom fighters' strongholds near Chigha Sarai.
